PROCESS EXPO offers something for everyone, including a number of events and activities geared toward students and emerging leaders of the food and beverage industry.
This section of the show floor is set aside for students to rest and mingle with friends. You can also visit with the following schools that have food-related programs: Illinois Institute of Technology, Iowa State University, Purdue University, Texas Tech University, University of Illinois at Chicago, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and University of Wisconsin–Madison.

AMSA E-POSTER PRESENTATION

The top three winners of the 2019 American Meat Science Association’s (AMSA) Reciprocal Meat Conference (RMC) student e-Poster competition will present their work in the QUAD. The winners representing the undergraduate, masters, and PhD categories earned a cash award of $2,000 for travel and lodging at this year’s PROCESS EXPO.

MOCK INTERVIEWS

The Young Professionals Group is offering 30-minute slots for students and new professionals to practice interviewing for their next job. Gain insights on commonly asked interview questions, receive feedback on your strengths and weaknesses, and boost your confidence for your future career in the food and beverage industry. If you’d like to take advantage of this opportunity, please contact Christine Radke at cradke@fpsa.org or 703-663-1220 to reserve your spot.
