PROCESS EXPO will take place October 8–11, 2019 at Chicago’s McCormick Place and there will be live demonstrations of the cheese line, three times daily to show attendees some of the latest innovations in processing and packaging technology.

These participating suppliers include:

- Alfa Laval
- Anritsu
- Custom Fabricating and Repair
- Multivac
- Relco
- Separators, Inc.
- Shambaugh & Sons
- Weber, Inc.

In addition, FPSA is proud to announce that Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) is participating in this project as the exclusive sponsor of the Production Line and will be providing cheese for the demonstrations,

"Following the success of the Production Lines at the 2017 show, the Dairy Council was the very first group to step up and stake a claim in the 2019 Production Line Program and we are very excited about the line that will be on display," said Jarrod McCarroll, Chairman of the Food Processing Suppliers Association (FPSA) and President of Weber, Inc. "From the separator and HTST, all the way through to post packaging inspection, this line will feature a number of innovations that processors will really benefit and learn from. Our idea is to produce a variety pack of cheese on the show floor, incorporating technologies that will be new for many of our customers. Show attendees certainly won't want to miss it."

"The Production Line concept was introduced by one of the FPSA members," said David Seckman, President & CEO of the Food Processing Suppliers Association (FPSA). "Two of our Councils developed this idea in 2017 and the concept was a tremendous success. We now see the same thing happening with this dairy line. Our participants are eager to highlight their technology and show the dairy industry what their equipment can do. We look forward to these demonstrations and the opportunity to meet with the dairy industry's top professionals."
